MISS FRANCES RIPLEY.
Following is the list of passengers on the Rio who joined the vessel at Honolulu on February 12, as furnished by Captain of Customs Stackpole:

Mrs. S. W. Wakefield, Miss N. Wakefield, W. A. Woodworth, Mrs. W. A. Woodworth, W. A. Hendshall, Miss John, O. Kawahara, Mrs. O. Kawahara, Young Cheung, A. Gaskin, A. W. Dodd, H. H. Long, Harry Guyan, Mrs. F. Ripley, Takata, Mrs. Takata, Sakemoto, Oda, Wm. Caspar, C. E. Jacob, Ph. Nusenblat.

NEWS of the sinking of the steamship City of Rio de Janeiro in San Francisco reaches us from San Francisco and the general loss of life in consequence thereof came Hendshall a fearful shock Saturday. Those who had relatives or friends on the vessel sorrowed over their sad fate or felt keenly the narrowness of escape. To all, however, the dread tidings brought a keen realization of the eternal presence of the death angel on the waste of waters separating these Islands from the Mainland.

Thousands knew personally one or more of those who were drowned. Some were here to congratulate themselves that they had not taken passage on the wrecked liner.

Fate seems to have made a curious dispensation. Robert Lewers and family and Edwin Puris had booked on the Rio but waited for the Mariposa while Charles E. Jacob, who was lost boarded the Rio at the last moment. Only an hour or two before her sailing he determined at the persuasion of friends to go to San Francisco on the Pacific Mail boat.

William Hendshall was hastening to California to see the aged father from whom he had been long separated and who had come from England to meet his son. For seven years they had not seen each other and the father had been in San Francisco a month already anticipating his son's arrival, when in sight of that city, the ship on which that son was sunk with him.

When the Mariposa came Saturday morning and the first information of the catastrophe was told, people hardly believed it. Only when they saw the San Francisco papers or in the exchange accepted the death list and soon the details of the disaster did they know the extent of the loss.

On Saturday morning the steamer was alongside with passengers discussing the scenes and miseries there who had gone down. The Rio had so many hours been a favorite sailing to Honolulu and its captain and crew as well known and popular that even the minor loss of the ship was deeply felt.

The San Francisco papers of February 22 inserted pages to accounts of the ship sinking and gave in detail the stories of the victims.

Passing of the Rio.
